

Background on Dr. Jerome Schultz, Ph.D.

Current

Clinical Neuropsychologist, specializing for 35 years in the diagnosis and treatment of all types of LD (learning disability), including dyslexia, as well as other conditions that make learning and social interactions challenging.

Lecturer on Psychology, Department of Child Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School

Local and international consultant to schools serving children with dyslexia

Author of book "Nowhere to Hide: Why Kids with ADHD and LD Hate School and What We Can Do About It" (Jossey-Bass, 2011) focus: the impact of stress on kids' learning

Keynote presenter at local and international conferences on Dyslexia, including the Learning Disability Association of America's international conference, held in Salt Lake City, and the UTAH State LDA Association's conference at Weber State (last year)

Member, Professional Advisory Board, the Learning Disabilities Association of America.

Author of the Fact Sheet on Stress and Dyslexia, written by invitation for the website of the International Dyslexia Association (www.ida.org)

Former

Middle and elementary teacher of students with LD (dyslexia)

Professor of (Special) Education, Lesley University, Cambridge MA (about 15 years), responsible for training and supervising students working with children who are dyslexic.

Associate Professor, Boston College, School of Education, Division of Special Education